ABSTRACT

1   A method and system use networked computers to allow meeting participants to

2   communicate expressive images for remote meetings. Meeting participants may select

3   and display photographs of themselves to other meeting participants, thus communicating

4   expressive images during meetings without interrupting the discussion and presentations

5   that are taking place. The expressive images may be transmitted over a network to other

6   meeting participants.